“THE SCIENCE OF STORYTELLING”

A LECTURE BY FREDERICK LUIS ALDAMA
Arts and Humanities Distinguished Professor of English
Ohio State University

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 2015
AUSTIN 217 (STERN LOUNGE)
4:00-6:00 p.m.

Drawing from insights in the cognitive sciences, Professor Aldama will propose a dynamic model for understanding why it is we create and consume stories in all variety of aural, visual, and verbal formats: from Hieronymus Bosch to Kafka as well as contemporary Latino & Mexican cinema and comic books. Considering film, short stories, art, and comics, Aldama proposes a science of storytelling that encompasses the willful interplay between the creation of artistic texts and the meaning we give them.
